They had lost everything....

Dalton had betrayed her father, the rightful Alpha of their pack, and Jana Dubois had watched it all happen. Her father had been murdered right in front of her eyes. Terrified, alone, and desperate, she had been forced to flee the only life, the only family, she had ever known, running into the desolate New Mexico dessert with only meager hope and an all-consuming fear pushing her onward.

Jana knew that the only way the pack would follow Dalton was if they mated, the new Alpha, and the old Alpha's daughter. Unfortunately, so did Dalton, and it didn't take him long to try and hunt her down.

But she knew as well as any that there were more dangerous creatures that hunted amongst the mountains, and she was about to meet them face to face.

...until they found each other.

They had survived for years by cultivating ghost stories about themselves, playing off the other pack's fears to keep their home safe and secret. Two rogue wolves, living off the land, reduced to scavengers after being banished from their pack, their families, everything they had known and love.

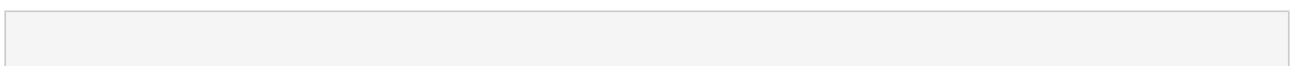

When Jana Dubois falls into one of their traps, no one expects the fireworks that explode around them, least of all Gabe, convinced that he would never be able to find happiness because of the terrible sins he had committed.

Maybe they have finally found just what they needed, the love they had lost, and the family they craved.
