Miss Corson's Practical American Cookery and Household Management : Her masterpiece Original Recipes since 1886 ((With Original 136 Illustrated) Active Table of Contents Juliet Corson

Miss Corson's practical American cookery and household management : an every-day book for American housekeepers, giving the most acceptable etiquette of American hospitality, and comprehensive and minute directions for marketing, carving, and general table-service, together with suggestions for the diet of children and the sick

IN submitting this book to the public, the author carries out a long-cherished purpose, which had its inception in a suggestion made to her by the Hon. John Eaton, United-States Commissioner of Education, during a discussion concerning the cookery of America. The fact that the cookery of Europe, and especially of France, enters so largely into the author's scheme of teaching, and of constructing her books already published, was being commented upon; and in response to her statement that this was occasioned by the demands of the public, and not from any lack of variety or excellence in American cookery, the commissioner suggested the preparation of a work sufficiently broad in scope and minute in detail to verify her assertion that genuine American cookery is both wholesome and palatable, and has lost none of the traditional excellence which characterized it in our grandmothers' days.

To facilitate the work, the commissioner caused the publication and extended circulation of the following correspondence:--
