No one could take the place of the recently departed Jackson, but artist Marlowe Stewart and her lover Daa (formerly Sheila Swenson of Minnesota) need someone to occupy his space - and share their house rental in the heart of San Francisco's Mission district. Their housemate Jack, a masseur, is delighted when Marlowe's long lost cousin Sheba McKenzie arrives by bus from Indigo Falls, Virginia, seeking room, board, and enlightenment. Soon Jack is leading Sheba up the two flights of stairs to his attic room for a full-body massage. Then comes her introduction to Immortality Thinking and banana smoothies. That's when Vic Morris arrives in his Chevy pickup, stuffed panda in hand, to bring his high school girlfriend, Sheba, home to marriage and motherhood back East. They've burned off their pasts to reinvent themselves in California: Marlowe, a political lesbian ready for a life change; Daa, her devoted lover; Jack, whose brilliant hands belie his head; Sheba, the innocent in Paradise; Dante, the gentle troubadour who specializes in unrequited romance; and Vic, primed for lessons in love, San Francisco style. Here in a land of Buddhist rituals and midsummer nights, full-moon parties laced with magic mushroom tea, they play out their destinies as the realities of life and death intervene.

James Stevens:

As a university student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library or make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's heart and soul or real their leisure activity. They just do what the trainer want, like asked to the library. They go to there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is to get complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever we really wish for. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this The California Book of the Dead can make you experience more interested to read.
