300 Sudoku 9x9

Un gioco di logica.

Il Sudoku è un gioco di logica nel quale al giocatore o solutore viene proposta una griglia di 9×9 celle, ciascuna delle quali può contenere un numero da 1 a 9, oppure essere vuota; la griglia è suddivisa in 9 righe orizzontali, 9 colonne verticali e in 9 "sottogriglie" di 3×3 celle contigue. Queste sottogriglie sono delimitate da bordi in neretto e chiamate regioni. Le griglie proposte al giocatore hanno da 20 a 35 celle contenenti un numero. Lo scopo del gioco è quello di riempire le caselle bianche con numeri da 1 a 9 in modo tale che in ogni riga, in ogni colonna e in ogni regione siano presenti tutte le cifre da 1 a 9, quindi senza ripetizioni. In tal senso lo schema, una volta riempito correttamente, appare come un quadrato latino.

Il gioco fu inventato dal matematico svizzero Eulero da Basilea (1707-1783). La versione moderna del gioco fu pubblicata per la prima volta nel 1979 dall'architetto statunitense Howard Garns all'interno del Dell Magazines con il titolo "Number Place". In seguito fu diffuso in Giappone dalla casa editrice Nikoli nel 1984, per poi diventare noto a livello internazionale soltanto a partire dal 2005.
