I created this title in aspiration of being able to successfully provide detailed and instructive content to those interested in web design, and do not currently have this particular skillset and ability. As a web designer it is important to stay up to date with the current trends and development structure of web design and how it is used and applied. Being able to provide your clients or your own business with up to date and modern tools for business is essential and helps business thrive.

My mission within these pages is to provide my readers with something valuable and appreciative that they will be able to use and grow with as they venture on into the world of web design. I want to take my readers from ground zero and move them through the stages of development and get familiar with HTML, CSS with simple, un-complex code.
