Love It or Leave It: You don't know you have it in you, until you really look for it. Francesco Granati
What is so tremendously striking about kids? The way they look at the world? Their enthusiasm? Their curiosity for every possible experience that they stumble upon? All of this together and more. Passion is something that people lose over the years. Why? How does this happen? Personal change for example is not always easy and still, if people learn how to adapt to it, they are enriched by it. The author takes the readers' hand and shares very personal and moving experiences, in order to let them understand, how he managed to deal with change in his life. The result is a special blend of personal, emotional and striking anecdotes with social psychology and continuous referrals to movies, songs and Tv - shows. Read what you have been missing all along - you won't be sorry.
